Johann Amos Comenius
Comenius University Bratislava (CU) is a modern European university which celebrated its 100th anniversary in 2019. It is the only Slovak university to regularly appear in global rankings of the world’s top universities. Its thirteen faculties offer the widest selection of study programmes (over 900) at three levels of study, and several of these study programmes are unique in Slovakia. There is a wide range of areas of human knowledge to choose from, be it medicine, the humanities and social sciences, natural sciences, mathematics, theology, and much more.

Comenius University is also a research institution which supports hundreds of domestic and international science and research projects. This allows many students to participate in top research during their study by actively contributing to projects, working on grants, and taking part in scientific internships both nationwide and abroad.

The Faculty of Medicine at Comenius University Bratislava (FMED CU) is the oldest of the thirteen faculties of Comenius University. It was established on the 21st September, 1919. Since its beginnings, it has been a recognized and sought after scientific, research and educational institution of particular importance for the development of clinical medicine. It produced a number of Professors, Associate Professors, chief surgeons and thousands of excellent experts - medical professionals renowned at home and abroad.

FMED CU currently offers education through accredited study programmes at all three levels of study. Undergraduate study of general medicine and dentistry forms the foundation. In the first three years, students mainly obtain knowledge in theoretical and pre-clinical subjects. Further training takes place predominantly at FMED clinics in teaching hospitals in Bratislava. Students can choose from a number of elective subjects. After successfully concluding the 6-year study, General Medicine graduates receive the MUDr degree and graduates of Dentistry the MDDr degree.

At the third level of study FMED offers Doctoral study in 23 study programmes which culminate by earning a PhD. Currently, FMED is accredited by the Slovak Ministry of Health to offer 40 specialized and sub-specialized study programmes, as well as 4 certified study programmes, producing medical doctors and dentists.

Every year, the Faculty of Medicine is very popular among international students, to whom it offers the General Medicine and Dentistry study programmes in English.
The Faculty of Law at Comenius University Bratislava (FLAW CU) was founded in October 1921. The faculty represents an excellent centre of legal sciences and education in the Slovak Republic. FLAW is also the largest and oldest faculty of law in Slovakia.

In the academic year 2017/2018 FLAW introduced a substantial change to its law study programme, taking inspiration from Western law schools. It began stressing the practical aspects of education by adopting legal clinics, simulated court disputes, and a student-run law consultancy in its education. FLAW offers more than 50 clinical subjects including the preparation for simulated international court proceedings (‘Moot courts’).

FLAW is the only faculty of law in Slovakia which offers a Bachelor study programme taught in English, with emphasis on management and law. The programme is provided in cooperation with the Faculty of Management. There is a Master programme in English focussing on international and European law. Graduates of English-language study programmes are particularly in demand in diplomacy, European institutions and multinational corporations, including large law firms.

FLAW is the Slovak law school which has the most intensive contacts with foreign law faculties and enables several dozens of its students to participate in the Erasmus+ programme and study abroad each year. The faculty regularly organizes academic conferences which include participants from abroad; the most prestigious of these events is the Bratislava Legal Forum.

Another part of the faculty is the Diplomatic Academy – Karol Rybárik Institute of International Relations, which offers a 2-year postgraduate programme designed for applicants who want to pursue a career in the diplomatic and consular services, state administration, or in the area of EU Law.
The Faculty of Arts at Comenius University Bratislava (FARS CU) was established in 1921. Over the years, it has become a top-level educational provider and a scientific institution of nationwide importance, which trains qualified experts in a wide range of fields. The faculty offers study programmes in humanities, social sciences, art sciences, history, pedagogy, and philology, as well as programmes in teaching and translation and interpreting at all levels of university study, including the doctoral level.

Many study programmes which the faculty offers, particularly in the area of language learning, are unique in the Slovak context and can only be studied at the faculty. Since it was founded, the faculty has produced a large number of eminent scientists, literary figures, teachers, and public servants who have greatly enriched our culture.

Lecturers and research staff participate in a considerable number of domestic and international research grants, and they publish scholarly monographs and studies at home and abroad. FARS CU co-operates with universities and research institutes from countries on four continents, but its most intensive contact is with EU universities. Every year, more than 200 of its students study abroad thanks to the Erasmus+ programme.

The faculty is home to five top research teams working in humanities and social sciences which are accredited by the Accreditation Commission. No other similar faculty in Slovakia has as many excellent teams, proving that the Faculty of Arts strives to be a leader in social sciences and humanities.
The Faculty of Natural Sciences at Comenius University Bratislava (FNS CU) was founded in 1940. It is a top scientific and educational institution with an extensive pedagogical and research focus. The Faculty of Natural Sciences is presently one of the largest faculties at Comenius University, both in terms of the number of staff and the number of students, and it is also the biggest faculty of natural sciences in Slovakia. In addition, FNS CU is also the first faculty in Slovakia whose Chemistry Bachelor programme was awarded the Chemistry EUROBACHELOR® quality label.

The faculty offers degrees in disciplines such as Biology, Chemistry, Geology, Geography, Environmental Sciences, and the Teaching of Natural Sciences. There are 26 Bachelor and 47 Master study programmes at the faculty, also including those with a teaching dimension. FNS CU academically sponsors and guarantees research programmes and projects whose results have earned recognition in the European context. The faculty motivates all of its students to carry out research activities – from the Bachelor level to the level of the PhD. Every year it organizes an exhibition of the students’ research projects, the Student Scientific Conference, which is attended by hundreds of students who present their contributions.

The graduates of the faculty find employment in industry, agriculture, tourism, environment protection, but also in health care, public administration, science, research, and many other fields.
The Faculty of Education at Comenius University Bratislava (FEDU CU) belongs to the largest faculties of Comenius University and it is the oldest and largest of the faculties of education in Slovakia. Its main mission is to prepare professionals for jobs especially in the areas of education, social services and assistance, and also to develop curricula, science and research in the field of pedagogical sciences, humanities and social sciences. The study programmes it offers include combined teaching programmes for the teachers of languages, history, civic education, psychology, music and visual arts. The faculty also offers single-subject study programmes in pre-school and elementary school pedagogy, primary education teaching, special pedagogy, therapeutic teaching, and social work. Its speech-therapy programme is unique in Slovakia. Our graduates have a higher-than-average likelihood of employment in all areas of life.

The staff of the faculty includes study programme guarantors, professors, associate professors and other pedagogues. There is an increasing number of young professors and associate professors and the quality of education is bolstered by visiting professors from abroad. Students are being actively involved in science and research. Teaching and research staff at the faculty’s departments and research institutes collaborate with their students on domestic and international research projects. All departments boast ample teaching and professional qualifications and the faculty operates its own academic library. The faculty also has its own, very successful choir, Comenius.
The Faculty of Pharmacy at Comenius University Bratislava (FPHARM CU) was founded in 1952, and is the only faculty of its kind in Slovakia which joined other top European faculties in the European Association of Faculties of Pharmacy. Pharmacy studies integrate knowledge of natural sciences, medicine and of specific pharmaceutical sciences. The faculty offers two full-time study programmes: a three-year Bachelor programme in Medical and Diagnostic Aids, and a joint Master programme in Pharmacy. In addition to compulsory courses, the faculty offers its students a range of optional and elective courses, which can help them shape and direct their professional careers.

The faculty is an educational institution popular among international students, who can study Pharmacy in English. The Faculty's special purpose facilities include two pharmacies, which serve as regular public pharmacies in addition to providing patients with additional services (e.g. blood pressure or blood sugar testing).

FPHARM CU has close ties with pharmaceutical practice and it cooperates with prominent institutions, institutes and pharmaceutical producers. Furthermore, the faculty cooperates with faculties and scientific institutions of similar nature in Slovakia and abroad.
The Faculty of Physical Education and Sport at Comenius University Bratislava (FSPORT CU) was established in 1960. It is the oldest educational institution of its kind in Slovakia. At present the faculty plays an important role in the preparation and education of physical education teachers and sport experts, as well as in creative development of sport sciences. FSPORT prepares students in the study programmes: Coaching, Coaching combined with Physical Education Teaching and a combined programme of Physical Education Teaching with a subsidiary subject pursued at a cooperating faculty of Comenius University (Biology, Geography, English, German or Slovak language, History, Religious Education).

The faculty’s departments guarantee the quality of education by cooperating with individual sport associations, providing qualified training to PE teachers and coaches in a number of sport specializations.

FSPORT has produced dozens of successful athletes who achieved excellent results at the Olympics, the World, European, and national Championships. The folk dance ensemble Gymnik has been a part of the Faculty since 1964 and promotes Slovak folk culture. Membership in the University Sport Club of FSPORT is open to the general public.
The Jessenius Faculty of Medicine at Comenius University Bratislava (JFMED CU) is one of the three public faculties of medicine in the Slovak Republic. It is located in Martin and became an independent faculty in 1969, forming an integral part of Comenius University.

The faculty provides all levels of study and offers the possibility to study General Medicine, Dentistry and non-medical programmes: Nursing, Midwifery and Public Health. In the academic year 1991/1992, JFMED was the very first faculty of medicine in Slovakia to open a General Medicine study programme in English.

JFMED CU is a top faculty in undergraduate medical education both domestically and internationally. It has first-class facilities at the University Hospital in Martin for studying the elementary and pre-clinical disciplines, as well as complete clinical training. In 2015 it opened a new centre for biomedical research - BioMed, which has cutting-edge technical equipment and excellent staff to help the faculty become involved in top international research. The faculty boasts great research results and is involved in many international activities.
The Faculty of Mathematics, Physics and Informatics at Comenius University Bratislava (FMPH CU) is consistently ranked as the best faculty in the area of natural sciences in Slovakia. The faculty was established in 1980, when its facilities were detached from the Faculty of Natural Sciences of Comenius University.

The faculty offers Bachelor, Master, and Doctoral degree programmes in all areas of mathematics, physics, and computer science. In these fields it also offers programmes for teachers. It collaborates with other faculties to offer several interdisciplinary programmes, including Biomedical Physics, Economic and Financial Mathematics, Managerial Mathematics, Cognitive Science, and Bioinformatics. Selected Master and Doctoral degree programmes are taught in English.

FMPH is one of the most successful research institutions in Slovakia. It has gained a footing in research areas which include nuclear physics, solid state physics, plasma physics, seismology, graph theory, differential equations, applied mathematics, theoretical computer science, computer graphics, cognitive science, and bioinformatics.

The faculty is fully prepared to help students with a physical disability, including barrier-free environment and individual treatment during both study and testing.
The Faculty of Roman Catholic Theology of Cyril and Methodius at Comenius University Bratislava (FRCTH CU) was established by an Act of the Czechoslovak Republic in 1919, but had to wait until autumn 1936 to open its doors. It was detached from Comenius University in 1945 and re-joined the University after the change of regime in 1990.

The faculty is among the largest and oldest educational institutions in the field of Catholic theology in Slovakia. Its mission is mainly to prepare students and theologians for the clerical profession. It offers a 6-year full-time study programme in Catholic Theology. Laymen can also study in Bratislava and in Banská Bystrica - Badín. They find employment as religious education teachers at elementary and secondary schools or in pastoral services at Catholic parishes.

FRCTH also includes two educational facilities based outside of Bratislava: the St. Gorazd Seminary in Nitra and the St. Francis Xavier Seminary in Badín.

The faculty pursues research in Catholic theology, biblical sciences and church history, and actively participates in the permanent formation and training of clergymen for pastoral work, and of catechists for elementary and secondary schools.
The Evangelical Lutheran Theological Faculty at Comenius University Bratislava (FELTH CU) is the successor to the Evangelical Lyceum in Bratislava which was founded in 1606. It was at this venerable institution that many contemporaries of Ľudovít Štúr studied theology. The faculty has been offering higher education in Evangelical Lutheran theology since 1919 as an academy of theology and since 1934 as a public faculty. It was integrated into Comenius University in 1990.

FELTH offers Bachelor, Master and Doctoral studies in theology, teaching and pedagogical sciences. The five-year full-time Master programme in Evangelical Lutheran Theology is essential to the preparation of clergy for the Evangelical Lutheran Church of the Augsburg Confession in Slovakia, Serbia and other countries. The Faculty cooperates with other CU faculties to offer several interdisciplinary study programmes, including the teaching of religious education in combination with Slovak, English, German or Hungarian languages, History, Geography, Philosophy or Physical Education. Graduates can find employment as teachers of religious education and the additional subject they studied. FELTH also offers a Bachelor study programme of Evangelical Lutheran Theology with a focus on social assistance and a related Master programme of Evangelical Lutheran Theology with a focus on Social Assistance Management.

The faculty occupies a modern campus and constitutes an important part of theological and religious life in Europe. Its study activities and accommodation facilities are accessible to students with special needs. The Faculty maintains extensive international contacts, which enable its students to study and perform research abroad.
The Faculty of Management at Comenius University Bratislava (FM CU) was established in 1991 and over the course of the 30 years of its existence it has earned a reputation of an excellent faculty both domestically and abroad.

The Faculty offers education on three levels of study: it has Bachelor programmes in management, business and international management, Master programmes in management, strategy and business, and international management, and a Doctoral programme in management. The Faculty obtained accreditation to lecture in English at all three levels. As many as 80 % of full-time students spend at least one semester at a foreign university through the Erasmus+ programme. Every year the faculty accepts about 200 students from abroad, contributing to an atmosphere of an international university right at the Faculty of Management. A part of the curriculum is taught in German and in French.

The study programmes are designed to prepare graduates for interesting and attractive positions in multinational corporations and multicultural teams. The acquired knowledge and skills give them a competitive edge in obtaining attractive jobs and launching them on a career path. The quality of graduates is confirmed by numerous independent evaluations and their rapid placement in the field which they studied, as well as their average starting salaries. Every year since 2008 FM CU has been the only Slovak faculty to obtain the title of Excellent Business School from the Eduniversal ranking agency.

“We prepare the leaders of the future.”
The Faculty of Social and Economic Sciences at Comenius University Bratislava (FSES CU) is a modern, dynamic faculty and the youngest faculty of Comenius University. It was established in 2002 and has since earned a reputation as one of the best faculties in social sciences in Slovakia, while also enjoying a solid renown abroad. It offers its students education in the study programmes of applied economy, European studies, social anthropology, social and work psychology, public policy and mediamatics; the latter taught in Martin.

The faculty also offers programmes entirely in English, delivered by top local and international instructors. We offer a Bachelor’s programme in Psychology, MA programme in European Studies, and three PhD programmes: Health Psychology, European Studies and Policies, and Social Anthropology.

Several top research teams operate at FSES. The faculty has contributed research to several large European projects and has developed domestic grants and projects in cooperation with both the public and the private sectors.

Graduates of FSES find employment in international organizations like the Council of Europe, OSCE or NATO, in EU institutions, think-tanks of regional organizations, research centres, in analytical departments of ministries and other bodies of state and public administration, in non-governmental organizations and in academia. They also work as professional psychologists in various fields like human resource management, marketing and consulting or psychological training, in financial institutions, but also the private sector where they work as economists and analysts.
