Contents definition:

Pedology deals with scientific methods of research and development in the field, especially with a specific focus on one of its components, such as soil chemistry, soil physics, soil biology, geobotany, soil genesis, classification, etc.

The current perception of soil not only as an environment enabling plant growth, i.e. the bearer of a production function, but also of other, ecological and socio-economic functions, raises the importance of soil to a prominent place among the components of the environment. Its destruction, or considerable devastation, would mean the end of life on planet Earth. For these reasons, the need for professionals - pedologists in the third millennium is really very high.
